Company expands availability of ultracapacitors

Ioxus Inc. of Oneonta, developers and manufacturers of ultracapacitor technologies for energy storage markets, has introduced its Ioxus Distributor Network.

The initiative, launched in October, was in response to the increased demand for smaller-sized, higher capacity and greater power density ultracapacitors for military, transportation, utility and alternative-energy applications, according to a media release.

The network provides companies, such as Advanced Power Components, Masline Electronics Inc. and Trendsetter Electronics with technical and marketing support.

“Ioxus, together with our distributors, helps expand the worldwide use of ultracapacitors for clean technology,” Chad Hall, chief operations officer of Ioxus, said in a media release. For more information, call Hall at 433-9011, ext. 205, or visit www.ioxus.com.
